Hi SnackPilot team,

Your monthly box offers a useful starting point for a recurring content series: a new destination, a first impression and a reason for viewers to join the conversation. I would like to bring that to your Instagram and TikTok channels as a UGC creator.

My portfolio includes food preparation, food and lifestyle, and unboxing formats. I develop the concepts, appear on camera, film and edit with CapCut and Canva. I also bring professional experience in editorial planning and community management from Consileon.

One proposed series is “Where are we tasting today?” A close-up of a snack opens the video, followed by a short guess, the reveal and a genuine first-taste reaction. A second cut could focus on texture and sound. Any cultural detail would be researched and checked rather than improvised. You can explore this recurring reel concept and an alternative sound-led opening on my application website: https://snackpilot.stellaaway.com

For a monthly collaboration, I would plan recurring formats alongside space for relevant trends, batch the product shots and keep a clear review schedule. English would be the main production language, with German versions available where useful.

I’m interested in a paid monthly collaboration for your brand channels. Before planning the first batch, I’d like to confirm the cash retainer, the 15–20-reel scope and whether your Europe-wide setup includes creators based in Germany.

Best regards,
Stella Michelle Metzler
